

Keeping the Plates Spinning

How do you meet your departmental goals when the priorities change daily or hourly? How do you keep all the plates spinning and determine which plates are truly important? When schedules are tight, every unexpected occurrence impacts your entire day. No matter how small the interruption, the ripple effects may be felt throughout your organization! You'll walk away from this session with incredibly practical tools you can use immediately to help you regain a measure of sanity in your work day. Offices of any size will find this helpful!

Target Audience

All levels

Presenter: Marc Pittman, CFCC

Marc is founder of FundraisingCoach.com and the author of Ask Without Fear!.

Marc coaches fundraising executives and small business owners. Through his fundraising and time management seminars and one-on-one work, he helped his clients reconnect with their passion.

A regular contributor at 501 Mission Place, he loves asking people for money and is fond of saying, "Fundraising is an extreme sport!" He's invited to speak at conferences and teaches fundraising seminars and nonprofit marketing to various organizations including Blackbaud's Conferences for Nonprofits, Habitat for Humanity International, and AFP regional meetings.

Marc also planted and pastored the Vineyard Church of Waterville and pastored it for nearly four years. When he's not helping others get passionate about Kingdom life or raising money, Marc likes:

- Coffee: He prides himself on being fairly accurate at identifying the geographical origin of coffee simply by its taste.
- Reading: He reads an average of a book a week on an extremely wide variety of topics.
- Travel: Having traveled around the world, Marc cannot wait to get back to India for some excellent masala dosa.
- Beer: With the strong encouragement of his wife, he stopped talking about wanting to homebrew and actually brewed his first batch of beer in 2007